Your dinner menu might include the likes of salt and pepper squid with coriander and bean shoots. YUM! This could be supplemented with a Vietnamese mint and nam jim dressing. OOH! For your main course, you can enjoy pan-fried dorade, creamed leeks, pommes noisette, textures of watercress, chanterelles, and beef jus. And for dessert? How about a mango, saffron and cardamom semifreddo? Sounds good to us. From dinner onwards, the world is your oyster! Take a late night dip, or perhaps invite some guests over to share an evening of fine wines and good times.

And just in case you are still unsure about how you would spend your day...
